BRILLIANT ADDRESS BY DEAN LAING

Philosophical Society Held Successful Meeting Last Night.

PRINCIPAL SPOKE.

Next Meeting of Society Two Weeks Hence.

One of the best and largest attended meetings of the Philosophical Society was held in the lounge room of the Union last night. The meeting was attended by about one hundred persons. President Bruce Copeland was in the chair and opened the meeting by giving a short survey of the history of the Society. He then called upon Sir Arthur Currie to introduce Dr. Laing the new Dean of the Arts Faculty.

The Principal introduced Dean Laing and explained to what great pains he had gone to in choosing the new Dean. He had travelled to England and there discussed with a very eminent Dean of a notable University, all the possible men for the position. They decided on a choice between one Englishman and Dr. Laing, and the latter was chosen.

Sir Arthur then came back to Canada and proceeded to get in touch with Dr. Laing.

A brief survey of Dean Laing's career may not be out of place here. He was born in Ontario and graduated from Toronto University. He then went out to British Columbia to teach for a while. Coming East again he took a post graduate course at Johns Hopkins University, and then went to Chicago University as Professor of Classics, chiefly Latin.

After some negotiation Sir Arthur Currie managed to persuade Dr. Laing to come to McGill as Dean of the Faculty of Arts. It was thought that he would not be able to get away from that City because he had married a Chicago girl, but this difficulty was evidently overcome. Sir Arthur spoke very eloquently.

LECTURE ON CONSUMPTION TO WORKERS

Social Service Workers Hear Dr. Byers.

CLEAN UP SLUMS.

Only Cure is Fresh Air, Sleep, Pure Food and Rest.

Over seventy-five percent of tuberculosis cases result from neglected colds, declared Dr. Byers, in a lecture to social service workers in the Chemistry Building yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Byers, in his interesting talk, outlined the causes and the treatment of tuberculosis. Spitting and coughing are the two great spreaders of this dread disease, and it will only be stamped out when the public becomes educated and the government passes and enforces stringent measures prohibiting spitting and open coughing. Consumptives should have special cups and cheesecloth handkerchiefs, and compelled to use them. No sanatorium will keep patients who disobey this ruling.

Tuberculosis, as any other disease, attacks those people who are run down, tired, or not in proper physical condition. There are two kinds of tuberculosis, the active and the latent. The active must be treated in a strict manner, and the latent must be given a treatment just as strict. Fresh air and sunlight are the principal factors in wiping out this awful plague.

The slums of cities are the breeding ground of the germ. Along the congested river front and the area around

ALL SET FOR RETURN GAME WITH U. OF M.

McGill Meets Strong Team at Arena on Saturday.

GREAT INTEREST

"Flin" Flanagan to Oppose French Students' Team For First Time.

The Senior hockey team having vanquished the Queens squad, are now concentrating their efforts with a view to redeeming themselves in the return game against University of Montreal on Saturday.

As will be recalled, our boys swallowed the narrow end of a 3-2 score in the first game on the 25th of January, and are anxious to prove to the "Flying Frenchmen" that there will be no repetition.

"Flin" Flanagan will of course be back in the game with his usual "wim, wigor and vitality" and will introduce himself to the U. of M. sextette in a manner in which only he himself is capable.

It would be useless to expound on the playing qualities of "Boo" Anderson, except to state that "Boo" will play. Further proof of our flashy centres staying power was furnished on Saturday when he was off the ice for only one minute of the entire ninety minutes' play. The combination of Anderson, Flanagan and Dineen fooled the tricolor squad time and again on Saturday and history is expected to repeat itself against U. of M.

McGerrigle and Dempsey further strengthened their right to the defence positions against Queens, and it will take more than the strategy of the Lamarr twins to penetrate this defence.

However, the work of the aforementioned Lamarr brothers, together with Desbrien, on the offensive for U. of M. is not to be underestimated. The latter wields a wicked stick when it comes to shooting on goal and the three display

KEEN RIVALRY FOR DARTMOUTH PLACES

Anderson, Davis and Egerton Make Snowshoe Team.

Close finishes were in style yesterday afternoon when the final eliminations of the Snowshoe team took place on the Campus. The first event was the 100 yards dash which was run off despite the quickly falling snow giving the competitors an opportunity to put their shoes to practical advantage. A good number of entries started off but owing to some accidental fouling by one runner the finish was somewhat doubtful and Mr. Van Wagner with the other judges had the dash repeated. In the final Duncan Anderson of Law '24 put up a very pretty fight and won from Davis and Carter by a good margin.

The last run was over a two mile course. Five men lined up with a keen desire to come in first but after a rather strenuous ordeal in the sticky snow Charlie Davis forged ahead in the last quarter of a mile and won a well deserved race.

It was decided to give every snowshoer an equal chance in choosing the best team to represent McGill at the coming carnival at Hanover N.H., this week. With this object in view two

EDUCATED FOOLS.

There is a type of man found around every university which might be characterized as belonging to the "educated fool" group. The students who can be said to come under the heading are easily distinguished from the remainder of the undergraduates, for they take pains to make themselves noticeable. The majority of them have eccentricities carefully cultivated so that they will be brought to the attention of the remainder of the students. In some cases it will be an affected accent, while in others still more foolish peculiarities are noticeable.

It is hard to explain the reason why these men go to such great pains to be artificial in their manners at all times; it must be that they wish to attain prominence in some way, and, lacking sufficient intellectual development to do so, they attempt to attract attention by their prepared list of tricks which they will quite willingly perform for any audience whatsoever. From the courses which they are following at the university they have picked up a little superficial knowledge, and, carefully noting the points of interest in something not at all connected with their work, they will bore the remainder of their classes with continual repetitions of empty phrases and boresome conversations. Art or music seems to be a favorite topic for them. With a few facts gathered from the week-end papers they are ready to dictate concerning the qualities of a picture or an opera, to the genuine disgust of anyone who is really conversant with the subjects.

If these men were only injuring themselves we would have no complaint to make about their actions, for no one bothers about the actions of an idiot. They can do no harm to the thinking men about them, for they are more an object of amusement than anything else. They are, however, dangerous to the younger and more impressionable students at the university. The undergraduates who are making the transition to the state of manhood will be seriously affected in after life by the impressions they receive at college. Many of these cannot distinguish between the slight veneer of sophistication which covers the vapid mind, on the one hand, and the deeper thoughtful student who does not need to seek attention, on the other.

There can be harm done by the group in question, and that is the only reason for giving them any attention whatsoever. It is too much to expect that the men themselves can ever be changed; it would take a higher being than ourselves to do so. This being the case, we can only pray that the university be delivered from the pest of "educated fools."

LEISURE TIME AND SUNDAY.

There is a good deal of criticism among the more orthodox residents of Montreal directed at the students who use Sunday as a day to attend the "movies," or to go skiing, or even to study. Such practices they hold are wrong, and even wicked. Of course their attitude may be dismissed, and rightly so, as being merely a reasonable sign of old-fashioned views on Sunday observance. But since there are good arguments to be given it would be as well to mention them.

The letter appearing in yesterday's issue of the "Daily" over the signature of a "Care-free Sophomore" puts the matter very plainly. The young lady demonstrates the great demand made on our time even in the so-called easy courses in Arts. What, then, of the unfortunate students of Science and Medicine? If one attempts to compute their leisure hours the result comes out to perhaps a trifle over an hour per day, usually an hour coming in at an inconvenient time. When then, are they to get the proper amount of physical outdoor exercise, the need for which is constantly being urged upon us by the authorities, the also necessary time for just "loafing," and the time for some social activities? We are constantly being told that studying is but one of the reasons why we come to a university, yet at the same time we are frowned upon if we devote some of the academic hours to other activities; that is, while we are being urged to something we are not allowed sufficient time to do it in, which is very much like the old rhyme which says: "Hang your clothes on hickory's nose, but don't go near the water." So that Sunday very frequently is taken for these other purposes and the over-worked student has a perfectly legitimate excuse in so using it.

LOST.

Lost — One Canadian Club!

Somewhere within the past year the McGill Canadian Club has been lost track of, and apparently forgotten by the majority of the students. Search made in the list of college clubs in the back of the University calendar fails to reveal any mention of it, while the usually well informed "handbook" contains no sign of its existence. From the secretary's office at the Union the following information was finally elicited:—

McGill Canadian Club.

President—H. B. O'Heir.

Vice-President—W. W. Davis.

We do not know if the men mentioned in the list of officers of the club have been elected for the present year or are still holding office from last season, but it is certain that there has been no signs of activity in the club.

The Canadian Club was one of the big literary clubs that comprised all of the students in the university, and it cannot be allowed to die from want of attention. It is high time that the men who are supposed to be in charge of the club should show some signs of life and, if they are being properly indicated as being in charge of the club's inactivity, they should immediately have their names withdrawn from the list of executives.

DELTA SIGMA ANNUAL PLAYS TO BE STAGED

The annual Delta Sigma plays will be given on Wednesday at 3 o'clock, in the Common Room. Four plays will be given—one by each year. The Seniors will stage "Augustus Does His Bit"; the Juniors, "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil"; the Sophomores, "Poky"; and the Freshettes, "Miss Burey at Court."

These plays always form one of the most entertaining of the Delta Sigma meetings, and this year cannot prove an exception. The plays, though all short, are very varied in character, so there will be no boring sameness. The actresses in the various years are spending a great deal of time on their efforts, and a crowded house, or rather Common Room, is desired. This great event takes place at 3 o'clock on Wednesday.

R.V.C. SENIORS TO HELP EUROPEAN STUDENTS

A meeting of R.V.C. '22 was held in the Common Room yesterday at 1 p.m., at which Miss Rough and Miss Hibbard were elected to take charge of the European Students' Relief.

It was decided that those who would prefer to give their subscriptions towards the relief of poor families in Montreal should have the opportunity of doing so through the same collection.

DRY DANCES.

The disinterested critic would complain not that we dance too much, but that we do not get enough fun out of our dances. They have become a business rather than a pleasure, each represents a series of problems culminating in a very methodical, clock-work evening of fox-trots and waltzes, lacking every possibility of novelty or surprise.

The problem of getting a girl (for those not under permanent contract) is followed by the problem of getting a ticket and the problem of filing a programme. For days or weeks before a dance the evening's activity has been planned with a perfection of detail and the event inevitably lacks spontaneity. A spirit of abandon is impossible under the rigid rules of the system and real enjoyment is confined to the small percentage of capable dancers who get a certain aesthetic pleasure from the actual dancing. The bubble and sparkle, the oft-praised lyric quality of the pleasures of the ball-room are becoming a thing of the past under our cut-and-dried system of programme filling. Just as impromptu parties of any variety are often more successful than carefully planned ones, so dances that require a minimum of preparation usually result in the happiest memories.

ently and greatly extolled the capabilities of the new Dean. Dean Laing then spoke. "Had I been still longer in Chicago I would still have come to McGill." He stressed the value of an Arts course, especially in the classics and pointed out that though the study of the classics might appear to the unsophisticated to be unprofitable, yet it afforded a splendid mental training in detail and accuracy as well as imparting a certain culture.

To lawyers the study of Latin and Greek was especially valuable in giving them practice in discrimination and judgment.

He approved of the study of Philosophy for the advancement of the culture of the race and age, but said that we could not understand Philosophy without a thorough knowledge of the classics. From the classics we get the original and from Philosophy we get culture. Dean Laing spoke with force and fluency and, although he spoke for nearly three quarters of an hour, he left the impression of having only given small morsels out of his vast accumulation of knowledge. When he finished speaking he was greatly applauded.

Dr. Hickson then rose to thank the Dean for his very admirable address. He said that he admired the calmness of thought which was engendered by a study of the classics and ended by hoping for a better and closer co-operation between the departments of Classics and Philosophy.

L. Spherber, ex-president of the Society, then expressed his thanks to Dean Laing and regretted that his speech had been, as he said, so brief.

The President himself then thanked the Dean and called upon anyone else in the audience to express himself.

Professor Caldwell of the Philosophical department praised Dean Laing's speech and pointed out that there was no such thing as useless knowledge. All knowledge was useful. He said that at the present time there was a great deal of specialization in the various branches of learning and that Philosophy was needed as the great centralizing factor to bind them all together and to give the student a comprehensive or "birds eye" view of the whole realm of knowledge.

Dr. King, of the Physics department then rose to express his thanks to Dean Laing on behalf of the department. He thought that there should be a more general study of that branch of natural philosophy called Physics.

The President announced that the next meeting of the Society would be held in two weeks time and that the subject to be discussed would be Political Philosophy in a paper on "Democracy in the United States and in Canada."

The meeting was then adjourned.

A CORRECTION.

The late Dr. J. M. Elder's funeral will be to-day, Tuesday, not Friday, as erroneously reported in yesterday's "Daily."

THE GODSAKERS.

Mr. H. G. Wells created a term not long ago which deserves to take its place in our vocabulary beside the more early creation of "flapper." He included under the heading of "Godsakers" that tribe of folk who stand by on the sidelines of action and chant (in terms more pious than those referred to by Mr. Wells,) "For Pete's sake, let's do something," when things are not going so well as they might. We find these people in every walk of life, and search high or low, we seldom find any of them acting on his own suggestion in such a way as to improve conditions one iota. The Godsaker is a man of many words, a behind-the-back critic.

How often we find him among us. He says pettishly, "There surely ought to be more school spirit at the Institute." What do we find him doing to promote it? Does he support athletics by attending home games? Does he go out of his way to make friends and acquaintances among his associates? Little does the Godsaker realize that all his complaining brings vengeance upon his own head by narrowing his vision. In satisfying his soul with words he removes a great incentive to constructive action.

Don't be a Godsaker! Keep your eyes and ears open for matters that can be improved. When you have found something don't sit around talking about it and waiting for somebody else to do it, do the best you can to make your corner of the universe a little better.

Professor's Wife—Why, my dear, you've got your shoes on the wrong feet.
Professor—But, Henrietta they're the only feet I've got.

LECTURE ON CONSUMPTION TO WORKERS.

St. Lawrence Main are the worse districts in Montreal. Here, ill-ventilated houses with dark rooms, are the playgrounds of the germ. The germ itself, is unable to live in fresh air and sunlight. "In the time of Moses houses of this nature," said the speaker, "were torn down and carried out of the city, and this should be done to these tenements and playgrounds built in their place."

"How many people take the trouble to find out where their milk supply comes from?" There are many clean, respectable dairies, but there are also many that should be put out of business. Milk is a spreader of tuberculosis, and should be carefully bought from a reliable dairy.

Home treatment has been very successfully used. Many cases have been apparently cured by this method. Figures show that more cases have been cured by proper home treatment than in many sanitariums. Absolute rest is necessary, and walking is only to be engaged in under medical supervision. Patients in bed rest their minds with needlework, and other simple tasks; those that are able to sit in chairs do higher grade work, such as embroidery, carpet making, and other tasks rest the minds of those able to walk.

Raw eggs should not be given, but egg noggs may be taken. The patient must keep himself clean within and clean without, with plenty of fresh air, but no draughts. The dangers of infection must be explained to the family, and care taken in burning all handkerchiefs and cups used for expectoration.

On the market at the present time there are many cures advertised for consumption. "Any specific cure for consumption is worthless," declared Dr. Byers, and these men are liars and criminals. Rest, open air, pure food and sleep (a regular life) are the only cure for consumption.

Before enforced legislation can be passed, the public must be educated. It is the social service workers who receive this education and who start an endless chain of knowledge among the ignorant.

The government takes the position that they are the trustees of public funds, and can not spend them until a majority of the public demand it. They are willing to spend this money, the public shows that they want it spent. Propaganda will accomplish this.

"Women have saved the human race," continued the lecturer, and now that they have the vote they can compel the legislature to enforce preventive measures and supply sanitariums; they have always taken care of disease, and they will continue." At present there are 300 beds in the province, and the need is for 3,000.

By the courtesy of the Red Cross a number of lantern slides were shown. The majority of them showed children in the open air schools, and sanitariums. These children have latent tuberculosis, and their health is built up so they can raise resistance to combat the disease. It is the children that the world is looking to, and if tuberculosis is to be stamped out it must be stamped out among the children. Home devices were shown which any tenement house could make at practically no cost. The fly, the public drinking cup, and the feather duster and broom are carriers of tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Reid proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker for his practical address, and valuable contributions to the social workers. Several questions were then asked, and it was seen that in 10,000 cases of consumption there are usually 1,000 deaths.

PEPYS AT MCGILL

Monday, Feb. 6th. A great concourse of right merry fellows came to me when I returned in a sort to triumph to the Arts Building this morning, and truly I know not when my heart felt more light or my spirits more easy flowing, and this in a philosophick and not in a material sense. My prognostication anent the frolics that would await me are but too true, and as said one of my fellows with the true and ready wit of a denizen of these Canadas, "There will be a bigge doings this night." Down with a fine swagger this afternoon to a jeweller fellows' on the Saint Catherine street there to have my newly-gotten coat-armour emblazoned on divers of my private possessions, to wit, a pair of cuff-links and the hasp and band of my fountain pen, and very sure that these things will cause a deal of jealousy among those of plebian birth and a baser descent.

NEW GAS LABORATORY FOR TECH.

The latest addition to Technology's collection of buildings, the new Gas Laboratory, is rapidly nearing completion.

The construction work has been done entirely under the direction of the Institute and is remarkable in the economy of its construction. The cost to Technology will be about $12,000 but the equipment will be installed by the U. S. government at a cost of $50,000.

This equipment will include three gasoline engines of each type to be used. The laboratory will be for student officers of the School of Application and Ordnance at Technology during the summer and for the regular undergraduates in the winter. The first classes there will begin some time in May, composed of fifty men divided into five groups, each of which spend three and a half weeks on the course.

R.V.C. GIRLS ARE INITIATED TO PARTY

Special Arrangement for Those Who Do Not Dance.

An invitation has been extended to all Ontario girls in the R. V. C. and any of their friends to attend the Ontario Club's skating party and dance to-morrow evening. The skating will begin at 8.00 o'clock on the campus rink and dancing in the Hall with refreshments at 10.00 o'clock.

As it has been found that some Ontario students do not skate, it was decided to stop skating at 10.00 o'clock so to have a longer time in The Hall. This will give these men the opportunity of taking "her" to a show and then enjoying the rest of the evening with the club.

Two competent musicians will supply the music for dancing and the refreshments will be of the usual high quality. The evening is being managed by the vice-president, Rumble so everyone can be assured of an evening of pleasure.

KEEN RIVALRY FOR DART-MOUTH PLACES.

sets of eliminations were held, with yesterday's as finals. As a result the following men were selected who have won at least one race and obtained the following number of points.

Charlie Davis, 10 points.
Duncan Anderson, 8 points.
N. Egerton, 8 points.

These three men will leave Montreal on Thursday morning with the Ski team to do their best to bring the honours back to McGill again this winter.

BOXERS TO MEET M.A.A. SQUAD

Brewer, Shackell, Abinovitch and Graham Already Chosen.

Next Saturday evening a McGill boxing team of eight men will meet the M. A. A. squad in their gymnasium. Graham, Shackell, Brewer, and Abinovitch has already been chosen and the lighter weights are yet to be decided.

The M. A. A. has put up medals and the Red and White are looking forward to bringing some of them from Peel street. In Brewer the college has one of the hardest hitting middleweights ever seen in Montreal amateur circles and great things are expected of him. Shackell will be up against a tough proposition when he meets Bert Light the 135 lb. champion of the M. A. A. A. Shackell has the harder hitting power but his opponent is fast and clever. This should prove the feature bout of the evening as it is between these two men for the city championship. They are evenly matched and are both in the pink of condition but the odds, if any, slightly favor the intercollegiate champion. Abinovitch improved wonderfully since coming to college and is hitting faster and harder. In previous bouts he has made a good impression and can always be relied upon to cause his opponent little satisfaction.

In the 125 lb. class it is very likely that Graham will be matched with last year's city champion. Graham is a game fighter and will force his man to the limit.

The lighter weights will likely be those men who won their bouts in the college championships, but much depends on their showing during the past year and this week.

Any profits arising from the meet will be divided equally between the two clubs. Although it has been impractical to postpone the meet on account of the hockey game, a large crowd of supporters are expected to be on hand.

All the engagements that the boxers are having are giving them wonderful training and ring experience, getting them into splendid shape to tackle the U. S. Naval Cadets at Annapolis, whether they will journey on March 11th. Undoubtedly they will have a hard tussle to put it over the aspirants for maritime honours but with the weight of training and experience they are receiving now should make a very creditable showing.

JUMPING CONTESTS AT COTE DES NEIGES

The activities of the McGill Ski Club which were somewhat deranged by reason of the late thaw and icy conditions prevailing during the last few days will be resumed today. The Ski-jumping and the ski proficiency tests which were to have been held last Thursday and were postponed for the reasons outlined above will be held at the Montreal Ski Club jumps on the Cote des Neiges Road this Tuesday, afternoon, at 2.30. Entries for these events will be received up there.

WRESTLERS LEAVE ON THURSDAY NIGHT

To Meet Cornell and Syracuse Universities.

The wrestlers leave Thursday evening for their two contests in the States. On Friday afternoon they will meet Cornell and on Saturday night they will tumble with the Syracuse outfit.

The squad this year, judging by the work they have shown in the recent competitions, is considered the strongest team that McGill has produced. Coach Smith, who has trained the men, is sure he has a team which will bring several victories to the University.

The team is practically the same as represented McGill in the intercollegiate meet last winter. This season they are superior in every department of the game; they are more experienced and have more vim in their work.

All the team has been chosen except in the 145 lb. class. In this class MacNaughton and Cowan will fight it out tomorrow afternoon. MacNaughton was last year's champion and defeated Messenger in the college championships but Cowan is a man to be reckoned with and there is sure to be a hard fought bout.

The team leaving on Thursday comprises the following:

118 lb.—MacDonald.
125 lb.—Matthews.
135 lb.—Curry.
145 lb.—Cowan or MacNaughton.
158 lb.—Armstrong.
175 lb.—Rumple.
Heavy.—MacKeen.

ALL SET FOR RETURN GAME WITH U. of M.

rare form when it comes to combined rushes. In his own position on defence Desbien proved himself to be a "bear."

Latreille in goals for U. of M. will doubtless acquit himself nobly and add considerably to the difficulties of the McGill forwards in finding an unprotected corner of their opponents' nets.

As before our rosters will find lusty opposition from the throat of the Frenchmen, and their hand is expected to swell this opposition. Therefore, it is up to us to outdo the efforts of the French students and root our team to a sure win.

A BOXER'S FIRST FIGHT.

When first you step into the ring
You worry yourself sick and pale
For little voices loudly sing
A woeeful and a tragic tale.

You look your man right in the face.
He seems so strong, it makes you meek

And now you wonder if the pace
Will be too fast for one so weak

That dear old home you left behind
Just taunts you, as your gloves they tie

How good it was to plug and grind!
But too late now, you have to die.

The referee steps briskly in
And bids you both to him come near
And then he tells you not to sin
Against the rules that men hold dear.

So now you're waiting for the bout
Your knees do not feel quite so strong

The referee calls "Seconds Out,"
A moment more, and then the "gong."

You step right in and shake his hand
You pull right back and land a swing

He tries a right but does not land
Hoorah! you're master of the ring.

—By an Ex-Pug.

LANGUAGES.

One of the persistent, though usually passive, objections to the curricula in colleges entertained by students is the fact of requiring foreign language credits for degrees. An ordinary objection is what what languages do we when I expect to live all my life in Texas?" a not altogether insurmountable objection, for education is not a matter of learning an effective means to earn bread and butter. A much stronger objection can be raised on grounds making these requirements produce more harm than good. Certainly languages have no practical utility in most cases and, for that reason, should not be required; but neither should they be forced upon students in the belief that the University's prime function consists in training people to accustom themselves to grinding routine. All cultural value is lost by forcing students to study them. "Those who read Greek or Latin for love," says a contemporary psychologist, "have not usually come out of universities." Languages have their value, though it rests on other than economic factors, and requirements that make them objects either of hatred or of mere toleration do not enhance that value.

She was visiting her uncle in California who was showing her the many things that grows there.

"This is a fig tree," said he.
"Why, Uncle, I thought fig leaves were larger than that," she said.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

We are familiar with the fact that the college—not our college specifically, but the college as an institution—is under fire. The practically-minded layman seems to have about the same suspicion of, if not open contempt for, the "learning" of the college man, as the medieval burgher felt for the bookish attainments of the cleric. People, even people not given to undue prejudices or one-sidedness of judgment, smile indulgently if college men are spoken of as though there were any dignity in that state of being. The college man is not taken seriously.

One may have wondered why this is so.

If one has carefully perused a college catalog, noting the courses offered and the paragraphs descriptive of the work required, one has wondered why.

If one has matriculated, and retired to contemplate his nice new registration card and to try to realize the volume of work to which he was about to be exposed, one has wondered why.

If one has associated for two or three years with a community of students, one begins to understand why.

He may have supposed, with childlike faith and confidence of the uninitiated, that, for instance, a senior who had majored in chemistry would have enough of the principles and methods of original research concealed about his person to be doing a bit of nosing about on his own hook to see what he could see. "Perish the thought!" such a senior has probably cried if interrogated. "I'm taking them because I must have it to get into medical college. That's all."

He may have found himself along with a student who has had from two to four semesters of literature, and have opened the subject of Browning, or Ibsen, or somebody else, tickled all over in anticipation of getting an intelligent discussion, full of snappy, first-hand opinions. He has probably met most dismal disappointment. He may even have discovered that the man could not give a hackneyed definition of poetry, much less attempt one of his own, and have been told that Luckies are not nearly as good a smoke as Fatimas.

He may have seen a dramatic club put on one of the "Iphigenia" plays or The Trojan Woman, or "The Golden Doom," or as beautiful a bit of art as "The Maker of Dreams," to a house that stolidly endured, but understood or appreciated not a whit; and listened afterwards to a glowing account of some smutty performance lately seen in the metropolis.

In short, he has probably looked in vain for any sign of real attainment, or real culture, in even one out of every twenty college men he knows.

One begins to appreciate, at length, the fact that, serious as is the world's indictment against college men, there is danger of its being proven.

It is a grave situation when it can be boldly and successfully asserted of us that we have not perceptibly broadened our minds, that we do not display any of the earmarks of culture, that we have no literary taste, that if we even have a theme to write we must make a mad dash to the library to find what someone else has written and rehash it as our own, that the only thing to which we give our attention are to win our athletic contests and therefore our bets, and to secure blind chaparones for our house parties; that we cannot carry forward any original research in our chosen major, and that, after years and degree, we are not even capable of the most rudimentary original thought.

There is apparently something wrong with either the system or ourselves.

Colgate Maroon.

Chad and Jule, a young colored couple, every morning walked to the village where they both worked.

One misty morning Chad discovered a catamount stretched along a limb which hung over the path. Like every one else in that country, he carried a shot-gun, hoping to get a squirrel or rabbit for supper. He fired at the brute, luckily blinding it. It fell to the ground and Chad killed it by beating it with the gun. Between them the two carried it to town, where it was admired, weighed and measured. Chad proudly told his story over and over. At last one of the bystanders asked: "Weren't you frightened, Chad?" "Yah! yah!" laughed Chad. "I was mighty skeered when I saw the varmint light over my head, and I didn't know what to do, 'ca'se my shot warn't big 'nough to kill him; then I 'membered I could run a heap faster than Jule—so I jes' up an' fired!"

When his mother entered the room she surveyed little Paul distrustfully and then said:

"Some one has taken a big piece of pie out of the pantry this morning." At this Paul reddened guiltily.

"Aren't you ashamed?" his mother reproached him. "I didn't think it was in you."

"Well, mother," piped Paul feebly. "It isn't in me. Part of it is in Isabel."

The small son of a well-known electrical engineer one day picked up a hornet. When his father hurried out to discover the cause of the commotion, the little lad was ruefully sucking his thumb, while tears streamed down his face.

"Why, what's the trouble?" asked the father.

"It was that bug," explained the boy between sobs. "I think his wirin' is defective. I touched him, and he wasn't insulated at all!"

"I'll be dammed, said the brook as the fat lady fell off the bridge.

AT THE THEATRES

PRINCESS.

Daphne Pollard, who scored such a complete success at the Princess last week re-appears this week before the usual capacity house, which greets her every performance. She has stayed to satisfy the great demand of the Montreal public.

Those merits of her acts which came so unexpectedly at unexpected incidents in her numbers, come with just so much unexpectedness as they did last week in the same scenes. She is just so much enjoyed after seeing her time and again as she is upon seeing her once. "Cleopatra" and "Wanted a Man," have lost nothing in our interest. The whole house resounds with the applause of an audience which knows a good thing on sight.

Her efforts according to the general verdict contribute to the season's new vaudeville one of the cheeriest, most enjoyable half-hour entertainments to be found in the theatre bills of to-day.

Edith Taliaferro presents "Under the Same Old Moon," a love tale of three continents. Europe, Asia and America, in the countries of those continents, Holland, China and in the North-west.

With a background of very tasteful setting the three little love stories strike a note of beauty. Miss Taliaferro excels in the Episodes of Holland and China. Her voice is a charm in both scenes. And that charm with her skill in the delineation of character, gives us the reason why the plays in which she took leading parts — "Shore Acres," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Please Get Married," and a number of others were so successful.

She is well supported — especially so in the Oriental scene by Robert Bentley and Lawrence Williams. One cannot help feeling disappointment in the Cabin scene of "The Northwest." Miss Taliaferro is not herself in this. Her support for the most part is poor. Something is lacking in it, unfortunately, and it is with regret that we must see a poor painting of one of Canada's Northwest Mounted Police, and a poorer sketch of one of a similar body in the United States. Their moral code in the scene is shot to pieces.

The man in the Moon, William Macaulay, is very good. Kate Elinore and Sam Williams play their newest version of "Wanted a Cook" — a very breezy little number with brilliant patter by a clever patterer, Miss Elinore. For the joke seeker she is worth meeting from many points of view. She is old, she says, but she has got young ideas. Mr. Williams supports her well, and sings Eddie Leonard's favourite song in Eddie Leonard's favorite way.

The famous phono singers, Irving and Jack Kaufman, are great entertainers. One can easily understand, after having heard them, why their popularity on the records exists. "Cherie," and "My Old Kentucky Home," have never been sung with more life, more feeling in "our city."

The Morak Sisters present a variety acrobatic bill, which is well executed. The tight-rope performance is well worthy of praise.

Wallace Galvin's card tricks are clever. His act would be perfect if he would cut down the egg show. It is rather hard to watch. The ring puzzle of his is a source of amusement, and in a small degree redeems his loss of the eggs. The little boy with him, or, I should say, called from the audience, is a good kid.

There are some water scenes of the kindly doings of Mother Nature at the close of the performance which one cannot afford to miss. It is only too bad that the scenes are not longer.

ORPHEUM.

A crowded house greeted the Monday night performance at the Orpheum Theatre last night, to see the presentation of the well-known farce, "Twin Beds." The cast was entirely adequate for the production and kept the audience convulsed with laughter for the greater part of the time.

William Townsend had the heaviest part in the play taking the character of Signor Monti and he never failed to carry off the humorous scenes to the best possible effect. Edna Preston, in the role of Blanche Hawkins, had a difficult part to take but she maintained her role throughout.

The story of the delicate situations in which the young wife and the Italian singer were found was the main theme in the plot of the play and caused many humorous situations. To the great number of people who had seen Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven acting in the motion picture version of the story, the carefulness shown in following out the

ILLNESS OF SPEAKER PUTS OFF MECH. CLUB

Owing to illness of Mr. Clark, it is necessary to postpone the meeting to-night at which he was to have read a paper. It is hoped that the paper will be given in the near future, and the date will be announced in these columns.

MARQUETTE HAS UNIQUE CLUB.

What promises to be the rarest and most unique organization of its kind in the world is the making at Marquette University and is called the "Proletarian's Club." Though little has been known of it until recently, it has been in existence since the first of the term. During the last few weeks its membership has increased over one hundred per cent and promises to assume even greater proportions.

The purpose of the club, as the name signifies, is to bring together students from all walks of life and there are no officers, no dues or anything that will give one man prestige over another. The chairman for each meeting is determined by drawing lots. All excessive and unnecessary expenses are avoided; any that do arise are paid for by a collection taken up among the members.

The humorous and, at the same time, "practical" side of the club, is seen in the following rules:

Clothing of a fancy or rich texture forbidden.

A fine levied on members arriving at meetings early.

Members having large amounts of money, that is, over a dollar, are frowned upon.

The continual wearing of clean collars and carrying of clean handkerchiefs is considered bad form.

All refreshments found on the person of a member must be shared equally among those present.

Those shouting the loudest in discussion have the best chance of being chairman at the next meeting, and anyone able to continually interrupt the speaker is chosen to that office as a matter of course.

minute details of the plot by the stock company, was surprising.

The part of Norah, the maid, was one of the most amazing in the plot and, though small, was carried off admirably by Phyllis Gilmore. David Herblin played the part of the youthful husband, while Jane Stewart was good as the Signora Monti. The complications in the scene were added to by the introduction of another newly-married couple in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Larkin, played by Frank Joyner and Virginia Richmond.

For a few hours of good healthy enjoyment the stock company has a play that is the equal of any entertainment in the city at the present time.

The confidence which is universally reposed in the Sun Life is proven by the fact that the Company now has Assurance in Force to the amount of over

MORE REALTY THAN RHYME.

There are many young folks, whose ambition invokes

A desire to act on the stage; They would play leading parts, captivate many hearts, And collect a good highwayman's wage. But for instance take me, I confess I can't see Any reason to seek such renown; For I'm quite satisfied with not having such pride, And in acting a part of my own.

For this world after all, is a stage not so small

As the one we pay two bucks to see; Ever since childhood days I've performed many plays, Yet I've not reaped a fat salary. Since my roll is so low, I must role Romeo,

Till the day when I find me a wife; But with wedlock they say that your wits fade away, So I guess I'll stay single for life.

I don't envy the guys who must tell awful lies About love to the fair leading dame, And in phrases divine recites "Woman, you're mine!"

And then kisses his way into fame. 'Cause in loving, you know, though the process is slow, I can always support a good cause; With a peach by my side, and her conscience my guide....

Well, I don't give a darn for applause.

Dr. Lyman P. Powell gives some examples of the lengths to which petty bitterness between sects will sometimes carry men. "A visitor in a certain town which had four churches and adequately supported none asked a pillar of one poor, dying church, 'How's your church getting on?' 'Not very well,' was the reply, 'but, thank the Lord, the others are not doing any better.'"

He: "My clutch is awfully weak."
She: "So I've noticed."
